Electronic Communications: Email, Voicemail and Text Messages

Email communications can be an effective means to communicate. However, no matter how secure an email system is, it is impossible to guarantee privacy. Voicemail and text messages also limit privacy.

Please indicate your preference regarding the following forms of electronic communication:

- I do not want to receive email containing any confidential treatment information.
- I understand the risks of email, and I am okay with using email correspondence.
- I understand the risks of text messaging, and I am okay with receiving text messages.
- It is okay to leave a voicemail message on the following numbers:

- Do not leave a message on these numbers:

- Please state any other communication preference or restriction:

- I would like to receive Eric's electronic newsletter.
- I do not want to receive Eric's electronic newsletter.
